FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS FOR APPLICANTS THAT FAILED NCLEX[®]

Pamela K. Randolph, RN MS
Associate Director of Education and
Evidence-Based Regulation

1. What should I do to pass NCLEX[®] next time?

The Board recommends that you contact your nursing program and inform them of your result. Please share your candidate profile with them so that they may assess your performance on the exam. All nursing programs in Arizona have informed the Board that they want to help you succeed on the next try. Your program has resources that you may be able access at little or no cost. The program is also aware of your overall performance and may be able to use that information along with your candidate profile to help you devise a plan for success.

There are NCLEX[®] review courses available at some community colleges and on the Internet. I suggest that you search the web with www.google.com using the keyword NCLEX[®]. You will encounter many resources. When selecting a review program, I suggest that you seek a program that gives the learner a diagnostic profile of their strengths and weaknesses and explains the rationale for the correct answers.

I also suggest that you work in health care while you are awaiting testing and use the work experience to critically examine nursing practice: note the medications and treatments given to the patients, how the patient's diagnosis relates to the nursing care and how nurses make decisions.

If you have test anxiety, I suggest you seek counseling to help you deal with the re-testing situation. Most applicants find that anxiety will decrease with repeated exposure to NCLEX[®]-type questions.

2. How many questions did I miss?

Everyone that takes NCLEX[®] misses about half of the questions. The test is designed to find a candidates ability level when 50% of the questions are answered correctly. To learn more about NCLEX[®], please consult your candidate bulletin or access the website of the National Council of State Boards of Nursing at www.ncsbn.org.

3. How close was I to passing?

You received a candidate profile that tells you how close to passing you were on each area of the test plan.

4. When can I re-take the exam?

You may apply to retake the exam at any time, but you must wait 45 days between exams. This length of time is necessary to give applicants items that they have not received on a previous exam. .

5. I failed the RN exam. Can I take the PN exam?

Yes. In Arizona, candidates that were eligible to take the RN and failed may take the PN exam. A separate application and fee to the Board is required along with a separate application and fee to the testing company. You do not need to resubmit fingerprints, unless they are over two (2) years old, or proof of program completion.

6. Can I review my test so I can see my mistakes?

Yes, there is a Review and Challenge procedure. To review the items you missed, you must apply through the Board and pay a $400 fee to the National Council of State Boards of Nursing. This reflects the actual cost of retrieving the exam items you missed and the time at the test center. If you choose to review your exam, you cannot register to take the exam again until the review is completed. The items that you see in a review will never be administered to you again. Most persons that review their exam do not find it helpful and discover that they misread many questions. For more information contact me at 602-889-5209.

7. What are my chances of passing NCLEX[®] on a repeat exam?

For the RN exam, 73% of US educated candidates passed on the second time and 60% of candidates passed on the third time. After the third attempt, the passing rates diminish ranging from 50% on the fourth try to 14% on the 12th try.

For the PN exam, 85% of US educated candidates passed on the second try, 76% on the third try, and 64% on the fourth try. After the fourth attempt, the passing rates diminish from 51% on the fifth try to 15% on the 12th try.

8. How many times may I take the NCLEX[®]?

In Arizona, you may take NCLEX[®] as many times as necessary to successfully pass.

9. Could you go over the fees for retaking the exam?

As of January 1, 2009 the fees for retaking the exam are:

1. $100 for reapplying to the Arizona State Board Nursing to re-take the exam if your application has not expired, or $300 for re-applying for licensure if your application has expired; and
2. $200 to the testing company to re-take the test.

You do not need to send proof of graduation or a fingerprint card if your fingerprints are less than two (2) years old. Please check your application status on the Arizona State Board of Nursing website at www.azbn.gov.

BEST WISHES FOR SUCCESS!
